Program

We will start our day taking a reflective journey through 500+ years of history through participating in the Blanket Exercise. As we will be on Treaty 6 territory, we will also learn some of the Treaty 6 context through this interactive activity. Following the Blanket Exercise, we will reflect on the experience through a Sharing Circle.

As Treaty Relationships are an important part of the Blanket Exercise, we will move into understanding our Alberta treaties.

- We will examine the history of treaty relationships.
- We will consider the directions set out by the TRC and the Alberta government to learn about treaty relationships.
- We will analyze the impacts of treaty relationships on Indigenous people, your school, your community and the province.
- We will explore ideas, resources and strategies that will help develop understanding of the impacts of treaty relationships.

This learning opportunity is being offered through curriculum implementation funding from Alberta Education.

Presenters

Jane Atkins

Jane is a life long learner whose interests lie in helping teachers and students in their respective success journeys. She has a Special Education background and has taught Grades 2 – 8 in numerous subject areas as well as in both official languages. Through her years working in Slave Lake, she gained an appreciation of Indigenous cultures and learning styles and has continued to develop her understanding throughout her 40+ years in the education system as a teacher, presenter and curriculum coordinator. She looks forward to being able to work with districts and their teachers as we strive to gain a better understanding of our Indigenous peoples through “Education For Reconciliation”.
